

Amos 2:10

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Also I brought you up from the land of Egypt, and led you forty years through the wilderness, to possess the land of the Amorite.

Analysis

---

After cataloging Israel's sins, Amos reminds them of God's grace: "Yet destroyed I the Amorite before them, whose height was like the height of the cedars, and he was strong as the oaks; yet I destroyed his fruit from above, and his roots from beneath." The Amorites, representing Canaan's inhabitants, were formidable enemies—tall, strong, entrenched (Numbers 13:28-33). Israel couldn't have conquered them through human strength. God destroyed them "from above" (fruit) and "beneath" (roots)—comprehensive, total destruction. This reminds Israel that their possession of the land was entirely God's gift, not their achievement. The Reformed doctrine of sovereign grace emphasizes that salvation and blessing originate solely with God's initiative and power (Ephesians 2:8-9). Israel's ingratitude after such grace magnified their sin.

Historical Context

The conquest of Canaan under Joshua involved multiple battles over years (Joshua 6-12). Archaeological evidence shows destructions at key Canaanite cities during this period. Scripture attributes victory to God, not Israel's military prowess (Joshua 1:5, 10:14, 42, 23:9-10). Israel's subsequent apostasy and injustice demonstrated shocking ingratitude—the pattern repeated in church history when blessed peoples forget God's grace and slide into apostasy.
