

Amos 3:4

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Will a lion roar in the forest, when he hath no prey? will a young lion cry out of his den, if he have taken nothing?

Analysis

Will a lion roar in the forest, when he hath no prey? (הִישָׁאֵג אֶרְיָה בְּעֵר וְטָרֵף אֵין) (ל')—The Hebrew yish'ag (roar) describes the lion's triumphant cry after seizing prey, not the hunting growl. Will a young lion cry out of his den, if he have taken nothing? (הֵיטֵן כִּפִּיר קוֹלוֹ מִמַּעַנְתּוֹ בְּלֹתִי אִם־לֶכֶד) —The kephir (young lion) roars only after capture, not before.

This is the second in Amos's chain of seven rhetorical questions (vv. 3-6) establishing cause-and-effect logic. The lion roars because it has prey; the effect (roaring) proves the cause (captured victim). Applied to Israel: God's announced judgment (the roar) proves Israel's guilt (the prey). The nation cannot claim innocence when the Lion of Judah roars their condemnation. Amos himself is the roar—his prophetic message signals Israel has already been 'caught' in covenant violation, awaiting inevitable judgment.

Historical Context

Shepherds in 8th century Judea knew lion behavior intimately. Lions inhabited the Jordan Valley thickets and preyed on livestock. Amos, himself a shepherd from Tekoa (Amos 1:1), used this vivid imagery his audience understood: lions don't roar randomly but only after successful kills. The roar warns other predators and celebrates the catch.

Study Questions

1. When God's Word confronts your sin, do you rationalize it away or recognize that divine discipline proves His just assessment of your guilt?
2. How does understanding judgment as God's 'roar' change your view of both His holiness and His redemptive purposes?
