

Colossians 2:1

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

For I would that ye knew what great conflict I have for you, and for them at Laodicea, and for as many as have not seen my face in the flesh;

Analysis

For I would that ye knew what great conflict I have for you, and for them at Laodicea, and for as many as have not seen my face in the flesh. Paul reveals his agōna (ἀγῶνα, "conflict/struggle")—the same athletic term from 1:29, depicting intense spiritual warfare through prayer and pastoral concern. Though physically absent from Colossae, Paul engages in fierce intercessory battle for churches facing doctrinal danger, proving that ministry transcends geography through prayer.

The inclusion of "Laodicea" and "as many as have not seen my face" indicates regional crisis. Colossae, Laodicea, and Hierapolis formed a triangle of cities in the Lycus Valley (4:13), all threatened by similar heresy. Paul's conflict extends to believers he'd never met personally, demonstrating apostolic concern for doctrinal purity throughout Christ's church, not merely congregations under direct oversight.

Historical Context

Laodicea, seven miles from Colossae, was a wealthy banking and textile center, later home to one of the seven churches in Revelation (3:14-22), rebuked for lukewarmness. The Lycus Valley's commercial prosperity and religious diversity created fertile ground for syncretistic teaching blending various spiritual traditions. Paul's warning protected multiple congregations from related errors.
