

Colossians 3:21

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Fathers, provoke not your children to anger, lest they be discouraged.

Analysis

Fathers, provoke not your children to anger, lest they be discouraged. Paul balances children's obedience with fathers' restraint. "Provoke not" (μὴ ερεθίζετε) means don't irritate, embitter, or exasperate. Present imperative with negative: stop provoking. Fathers with absolute authority must exercise it wisely, not abusing power through harshness, inconsistency, favoritism, or unreasonable demands that crush spirits.

"Lest they be discouraged" (ἵνα μὴ αθυμῶσιν, ἵνα μὴ ἀθυμῶσιν) indicates negative result: children lose heart, become despondent, lose motivation. Harsh, unreasonable parenting produces discouraged, resentful children. Fathers must balance discipline with encouragement, authority with love, correction with affirmation. Ephesians 6:4 adds positive: "bring them up in the nurture and admonition of the Lord"—parenting aims at spiritual formation, not merely behavioral compliance.

Historical Context

Ancient paternal authority was often harsh and arbitrary. Unwanted infants were exposed (left to die); children received brutal discipline; favoritism was common. Paul's warning against provoking children to discouragement introduced compassionate parenting rare in ancient world. Christian fathers were to reflect heavenly Father's character—firm but loving, correcting but encouraging, just but merciful. This humanized childhood while maintaining necessary parental authority and discipline.

Study Questions

1. How do you discipline children in ways that correct behavior without crushing spirit or producing bitterness?
2. What provokes children to discouragement—unrealistic expectations, inconsistent discipline, harsh criticism, comparative judgment?
3. How can you balance biblical correction and discipline with encouragement and affirmation that build up?
