

Daniel 10:21

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

But I will shew thee that which is noted in the scripture of truth: and there is none that holdeth with me in these things, but Michael your prince.

Analysis

The angel concludes: 'But I will shew thee that which is noted in the scripture of truth: and there is none that holdeth with me in these things, but Michael your prince.' The 'scripture of truth' (תּוֹרַת אֱמֶת/ketav emet) indicates a heavenly record of determined future events—God's sovereign decree written in His eternal counsel. This teaches divine foreknowledge and predestination: history unfolds according to God's predetermined plan. Michael, called 'your prince,' is Israel's angelic guardian (12:1, Jude 9, Revelation 12:7)—showing God assigns angelic protection to His people. The phrase 'none that holdeth with me...but Michael' indicates few allies in spiritual warfare against powerful demonic forces—most angels have other assignments; only Michael specifically aids this messenger. This reveals both spiritual warfare's reality and angelic organization under God's command.

Historical Context

Michael the archangel appears in Daniel (10:13, 21; 12:1), Jude 9 (disputing with Satan over Moses's body), and Revelation 12:7 (leading heavenly armies against the dragon). Jewish tradition recognized Michael as Israel's heavenly defender. The concept of 'books' or 'records' in heaven appears throughout Scripture: book of life (Exodus 32:32, Revelation 20:12), books of works (Revelation 20:12), scroll with seven seals (Revelation 5-6). These images teach that history isn't random but unfolds according to divine decree. God knows and has determined (while including human free agency mysteriously) all events. The 'scripture of truth' being revealed to Daniel shows God graciously discloses portions of His eternal counsel to prophets for His people's benefit—not exhaustive knowledge but sufficient revelation for faithful living.
