

Daniel 12:8

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

And I heard, but I understood not: then said I, O my Lord, what shall be the end of these things?

Analysis

This verse captures Daniel's honest response to apocalyptic revelation. The Hebrew shamati ("I heard") indicates he clearly received the message, but lo avin ("I understood not") reveals his inability to comprehend its full meaning. Daniel models intellectual humility—even after receiving direct divine revelation, he acknowledges the limits of his understanding. His question "what shall be the end of these things?" seeks clarification about the final outcome.

This verse teaches several crucial truths about divine revelation:

1. hearing God's word doesn't guarantee immediate understanding
2. godly response to confusion is humble inquiry rather than presumptuous interpretation
3. some mysteries remain partially veiled even to the most faithful,
4. the appropriate posture before incomprehensible revelation is reverent persistence in seeking understanding.

The response Daniel receives (verses 9-13) indicates that full understanding must await "the time of the end." Some truths are sealed until their appointed time of fulfillment.

This teaches that God reveals what we need when we need it.

Historical Context

Daniel 12 concludes the final vision (chapters 10-12), received during Cyrus's third year (10:1), around 536 BC. Daniel was approximately 85 years old. This vision concerned the future suffering and ultimate triumph of God's people, spanning from Daniel's day through the intertestamental period, Greek rule, Roman occupation, and beyond to final resurrection.

The detailed prophecies about future kingdoms would have staggered Daniel. He foresaw persecution under Antiochus IV Epiphanes, the abomination of desolation, and patterns extending to the end of the age. Daniel's confusion mirrors our own when faced with prophecy's complexity.
