

Daniel 6:16

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Then the king commanded, and they brought Daniel, and cast him into the den of lions. Now the king spake and said unto Daniel, Thy God whom thou servest continually, he will deliver thee.

Analysis

The king's hopeful word to Daniel shows both desperation and dawning faith: 'Thy God whom thou servest continually, he will deliver thee.' This statement combines acknowledgment of Daniel's faithful service ('whom thou servest continually') with hope in divine deliverance. Darius doesn't say 'may deliver' but 'will deliver'—expressing either politeness to a doomed man or genuine faith that Daniel's God is powerful. The phrase 'continually' recognizes Daniel's consistent devotion. This contrasts with the king's own failure—he served pride and self-interest by signing the foolish decree.

Historical Context

Ancient Near Eastern kings rarely expressed confidence in foreign gods, making Darius's statement remarkable. The timing matters—spoken as Daniel descends into the lion's den, this represents either desperate hope or genuine faith. Ancient lion dens were typically pits or caves used for keeping lions for royal hunts. Throwing someone into a den of multiple hungry lions normally meant certain death. Darius's words show he recognizes Daniel's God might accomplish what the king's power couldn't—deliverance from impossible circumstances.

Study Questions

1. How does consistent ('continual') faithfulness create testimony that even unbelievers recognize and respect?
2. What does Darius's statement teach about how our faithful service to God can provoke faith (or at least hope) in observers?
