

Deuteronomy 1:11

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

(The LORD God of your fathers make you a thousand times so many more as ye are, and bless you, as he hath promised you!)

Analysis

Moses' prayer for continued multiplication 'a thousand times' and blessing reveals the heart of intercessory leadership. Despite knowing he wouldn't enter Canaan himself, Moses earnestly desired God's continued favor on the next generation. The phrase 'as he hath promised you' anchors the request in God's character—not presumption but faith in God's revealed will. This models selfless prayer that seeks God's glory beyond personal benefit.

Historical Context

This prayer came near the end of Moses' 120-year life, showing that faithfulness to the end includes blessing the next generation. Moses' intercession echoes his role as mediator throughout the wilderness journey, consistently standing between God and the people.
