

Deuteronomy 1:13

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Take you wise men, and understanding, and known among your tribes, and I will make them rulers over you.

Analysis

Moses' instruction to choose leaders 'wise and understanding, and known among your tribes' establishes three essential leadership qualifications: wisdom (practical discernment), understanding (intellectual capability), and reputation (proven character). The participatory element—'Take you'—shows that leadership selection involved communal discernment, not autocratic appointment. God values both competence and character, with public recognition validating private virtue.

Historical Context

This democratic element in ancient Israel was relatively unique among Near Eastern nations ruled by absolute monarchs. The tribal system allowed for local knowledge and accountability, ensuring leaders truly understood their people's needs and contexts.
