

Deuteronomy 1:14

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

And ye answered me, and said, The thing which thou hast spoken is good for us to do.

Analysis

The people's response—"The thing which thou hast spoken is good to do"—demonstrates proper submission to wise counsel. Their agreement wasn't blind obedience but recognition of sound wisdom. This collaborative approach to governance shows the ideal relationship between leaders and people: leaders propose wisdom, people affirm and support it. Unity in purpose and method enables effective ministry and mission.

Historical Context

This stands in stark contrast to later rebellions (Korah's uprising, Numbers 16) where the people rejected Moses' leadership. When wisdom is clearly communicated and properly motivated, God's people can discern and support good leadership structures.

Study Questions

1. How readily do you affirm and support wise counsel when it's offered?
2. What helps you distinguish between submission to wisdom and mere compliance?
