

Deuteronomy 10:21

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

He is thy praise, and he is thy God, that hath done for thee these great and terrible things, which thine eyes have seen.

Analysis

He is thy praise—The Hebrew construction makes God Himself the substance and object of Israel's worship. Not merely the One who receives praise, Yahweh is the content—His character, deeds, and glory are what Israel boasts in. This anticipates Paul's 'He who boasts, let him boast in the Lord' (1 Corinthians 1:31, quoting Jeremiah 9:23-24). God's excellence is Israel's sole ground of confidence.

That hath done for thee these great and terrible things, which thine eyes have seen—Moses appeals to eyewitness testimony of God's mighty acts: the plagues, Red Sea crossing, Sinai theophany, wilderness provision. Nora'ot (terrible things) refers to awe-inspiring demonstrations of divine power. This verse links worship to remembrance—rehearsing God's redemptive history fuels praise. For Christians, Christ's cross and resurrection are the 'great and terrible things' that become our testimony and the substance of our praise (1 Peter 2:9).

Historical Context

Moses spoke to the generation born in the wilderness who witnessed the water from the rock, manna, quail, and God's judgments. Their parents saw the exodus; they saw God's faithfulness during 40 years of wandering. This living memory was to fuel perpetual worship.
