

Deuteronomy 11:18

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Therefore shall ye lay up these my words in your heart and in your soul, and bind them for a sign upon your hand, that they may be as frontlets between your eyes.

Analysis

The remedy: 'lay up these my words in your heart and in your soul.' The Hebrew sum (סוּם, 'place, set, establish') indicates intentional, permanent placement. God's words must be internalized, not merely heard. The command continues: 'bind them for a sign upon your hand' and 'frontlets between your eyes.' This produced the Jewish practice of tefillin (phylacteries)—leather boxes containing Scripture worn during prayer. While the command may be partly figurative (meaning constant mindfulness), Jewish tradition took it literally. The point: Scripture should govern actions (hand) and thoughts (eyes/mind).

Historical Context

This command repeats Deuteronomy 6:8, establishing the practice of Scripture memorization and display. Exodus 13:9, 16 first introduced this concept regarding Passover remembrance. Post-exilic Judaism developed elaborate tefillin practices. Jesus criticized Pharisees who made ostentatious phylacteries while neglecting Scripture's heart (Matthew 23:5). True obedience internalizes God's word.

Study Questions

1. What does it mean to 'lay up' God's words in your heart versus merely reading or hearing them?
2. How can Christians practice the spirit of this command (Scripture permeating thought and action) today?
3. What is the danger of external religious observance without internal transformation?
