

Deuteronomy 15:14

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Thou shalt furnish him liberally out of thy flock, and out of thy floor, and out of thy winepress: of that wherewith the LORD thy God hath blessed thee thou shalt give unto him.

Analysis

Of that wherewith the LORD thy God hath blessed thee thou shalt give unto him—The motivation for generosity: you're redistributing God's blessing, not surrendering your achievement. This destroys pride: What hast thou that thou didst not receive? (1 Corinthians 4:7). The master's wealth came from God's blessing, making stinginess toward the freed servant ingratitude toward God.

The Greek word koinonia (κοινωνία, 'fellowship, sharing') describes the early church: All that believed were together, and had all things common (Acts 2:44). This wasn't communism but recognition that the earth is the LORD's (Psalm 24:1). We're stewards, not owners. The servant law embodied 'kingdom economics': abundant grace produces generous giving, creating flourishing community.

Historical Context

In agrarian Israel, livestock, grain, and wine represented capital, not mere commodities—the means of production. Giving these to freed servants transferred wealth-generating capacity, not just consumables. This radical generosity distinguished Israelite society from surrounding cultures.

Study Questions

1. How does viewing your resources as 'God's blessing to redistribute' rather than 'my achievement to protect' change your generosity?
2. What capital goods (wealth-generating assets, skills, connections) could you share to empower others' flourishing?
3. In what ways does Acts 2:44's 'all things common' reflect this Deuteronomic principle of covenant generosity?
