

Deuteronomy 17:16

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

But he shall not multiply horses to himself, nor cause the people to return to Egypt, to the end that he should multiply horses: forasmuch as the LORD hath said unto you, Ye shall henceforth return no more that way.

Analysis

But he shall not multiply horses to himself (לֹא-יַרְבֶּה-לוֹ סוּסִים, lo-yarbeh-lo susim)—horses symbolized military might and Egyptian-style chariot warfare. Yarbeh (multiply) means accumulate excessively. God forbids royal militarism that trusts in armaments rather than divine protection.

Nor cause the people to return to Egypt identifies the deeper issue: horses came from Egypt, and acquiring them meant Egyptian alliances, trade relationships, and cultural influence. Egypt represents the world system, slavery, and false security. Returning to Egypt—physically or spiritually—reverses the exodus. Isaiah 31:1-3 denounces this exact sin: 'Woe to them that go down to Egypt for help; and stay on horses, and trust in chariots.' Solomon spectacularly violated this command (1 Kings 10:26-29), accumulating 1,400 chariots and 12,000 horsemen, with Egyptian trade relationships that contributed to his apostasy.

Historical Context

In ancient Near Eastern warfare (circa 1400-1000 BCE), horses and chariots represented cutting-edge military technology, particularly associated with Egypt and later the Hittites. Israel entered Canaan as infantry; God's strategy was faith-based warfare (Joshua 11:6-9 specifically commands hamstringing captured horses). Deuteronomy 17:14-20 restricts kingship three ways: military power (horses), political alliances (wives), and economic wealth (gold/silver). Moses anticipates monarchy's temptations 200 years before Saul's anointing. Solomon's violation of all three restrictions led directly to the kingdom's division (1 Kings 11-12).
