

Deuteronomy 2:1

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Then we turned, and took our journey into the wilderness by the way of the Red sea, as the LORD spake unto me: and we compassed mount Seir many days.

Analysis

The phrase 'we turned, and took our journey into the wilderness' marks the tragic consequence of unbelief—Israel going backward instead of forward into promise. The 'way of the Red Sea' led them away from Canaan, prolonging their journey unnecessarily. This illustrates how disobedience doesn't just delay blessing but actively moves us away from God's purposes. The 'many days' of circling Mount Seir represents wasted time due to faithless rebellion.

Historical Context

This began the 38 years of wilderness wandering between Kadesh-barnea and finally crossing into Canaan. Numbers 14:33-34 specified exactly 40 years total (one for each day the spies explored the land), demonstrating God's precise justice tempered with continued provision.
