

Deuteronomy 2:28

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Thou shalt sell me meat for money, that I may eat; and give me water for money, that I may drink: only I will pass through on my feet;

Analysis

Sihon's refusal had divine causation: 'the LORD thy God hardened his spirit, and made his heart obstinate.' This sovereign hardening (like Pharaoh's) served God's purpose 'that he might deliver him into thy hand.' God's hardening doesn't violate human will but confirms existing disposition, turning rebellion into occasion for judgment. This raises profound questions about divine sovereignty and human responsibility that Scripture holds in tension.

Historical Context

Sihon's hardening parallels Pharaoh (Exodus 7-14), showing a pattern where God judicially hardens those persistently resistant to His purposes. This isn't arbitrary cruelty but righteous judgment that uses human rebellion to accomplish divine plans. The conquest of Sihon's territory became essential for Israel's Transjordan settlement and approach to Canaan.
