

Deuteronomy 21:2

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Then thy elders and thy judges shall come forth, and they shall measure unto the cities which are round about him that is slain:

Analysis

Then thy elders and thy judges shall come forth, and they shall measure unto the cities which are round about him that is slain. The measuring determines which city bears primary responsibility for the ritual cleansing. Geographical proximity indicates which community should have provided protection and pursued justice.

The involvement of elders and thy judges indicates official legal action, not private response. Community leadership must investigate and take responsibility, demonstrating that justice is communal obligation requiring authorized oversight.

The careful measuring unto the cities shows precision in determining responsibility. God's law is not arbitrary but proportional - the nearest city bears greatest accountability for safety in their region.

This teaches that proximity creates responsibility. Those nearest to evil have special obligation to prevent it, address it, and make restitution when it occurs in their sphere of influence.

Historical Context

City elders served as local government and judicial authority in ancient Israel. They were responsible for maintaining order, administering justice, and representing the community in legal and religious matters.

The measuring procedure would have been public, ensuring transparency in determining which city bore responsibility for the ritual.
