

Deuteronomy 26:19

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

And to make thee high above all nations which he hath made, in praise, and in name, and in honour; and that thou mayest be an holy people unto the LORD thy God, as he hath spoken.

Analysis

And to make thee high above all nations which he hath made—God's purpose for Israel was exaltation among nations, not political dominance but moral and spiritual preeminence. In praise, and in name, and in honour—the Hebrew lit-hilah, ul-shem, ul-tif'arah (לְתִהְיֶה וּלְשֵׁם וּלְתִפְאָרָה) means for praise, for fame/reputation, and for beauty/glory. Israel's distinctiveness would attract nations to worship Yahweh (see Isaiah 60:1-3, Zechariah 8:23). And that thou mayest be an holy people unto the LORD thy God, as he hath spoken—the ultimate purpose: holiness, separation unto God and reflection of His character.

This promise conditioned on obedience (note the context of 26:16-17). Israel's elevation wasn't automatic ethnic privilege but covenant consequence—obedience brings glory, rebellion brings shame (see Deuteronomy 28). Tragically, Israel's disobedience made God's name contemptible among nations (Ezekiel 36:20-23). Yet the promise finds ultimate fulfillment in Christ's church, a multinational holy people displaying God's character (Ephesians 2:19-22, Revelation 5:9-10).

Historical Context

Spoken circa 1406 BC as motivational conclusion to covenant stipulations. The promise echoed God's intent stated at Sinai: 'You will be for me a kingdom of priests and a holy nation' (Exodus 19:6). Israel's subsequent history showed repeated failure—idolatry, injustice, and rebellion led to Assyrian conquest (722

BC) and Babylonian exile (586 BC). Only in Christ does God create the truly holy, multinational people this passage anticipated, the church purchased by His blood from every tribe and nation.
