

Deuteronomy 28:10

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

And all people of the earth shall see that thou art called by the name of the LORD; and they shall be afraid of thee.

Analysis

And all people of the earth shall see that thou art called by the name of the LORD; and they shall be afraid of thee. Covenant blessing produces visible testimony - all people of the earth shall see. Israel's relationship with God and resulting flourishing would be evident to watching nations, demonstrating the reality and power of the true God.

Being called by the name of the LORD indicates identification and ownership. Israel belongs to Yahweh, bearing His name as wife bears husband's name. This relationship creates both privilege (divine protection) and responsibility (representing God faithfully).

The result they shall be afraid of thee indicates that nations would respect and fear Israel, not because of Israel's inherent power but because of their association with the Almighty God. Fear here combines dread, awe, and reluctance to oppose.

This missional purpose - displaying God's character to nations - continues for the church. Christians bear Christ's name and should live in ways that cause the world to glorify God (Matthew 5:16).

Historical Context

When Israel walked faithfully, surrounding nations did fear them - Rahab testified that terror of Israel fell on Canaanites because of what God had done (Joshua

2:9-11). Israel's God-given victories created international reputation.

When Israel disobeyed, they became objects of derision rather than respect, and God's name was blasphemed among the nations (Ezekiel 36:20-23).

Study Questions

1. What does visible testimony to watching nations teach about covenant blessing's purpose?
2. How does bearing God's name create both privilege and responsibility?
3. Why would nations fear Israel - because of Israel's strength or God's power?
4. How does the church continue this missional purpose of displaying God to the world?
5. What happens when God's people disobey and cause His name to be blasphemed?
