

Deuteronomy 28:53

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

And thou shalt eat the fruit of thine own body, the flesh of thy sons and of thy daughters, which the LORD thy God hath given thee, in the siege, and in the straitness, wherewith thine enemies shall distress thee:

Analysis

And thou shalt eat the fruit of thine own body, the flesh of thy sons and of thy daughters—this is the most horrifying curse in the entire chapter. The Hebrew phrase pərî hîṭnəḱā (פְּרִי בִטְנְךָ, 'fruit of your womb') uses tender language for pregnancy to describe unspeakable horror: cannibalism of one's own children. This prophesied the most extreme degradation possible under siege conditions.

This literally occurred during the Babylonian siege (Lamentations 2:20, 4:10) and again under Rome. Josephus records a woman named Mary eating her own infant during the AD 70 siege—a fulfillment so precise it defies coincidence. The phrase in the siege, and in the straitness (בְּמָצוֹר וּבְמַצוֹק, bəmāšôr ûḇəmāšôq) means 'in the distress and in the anguish' of military encirclement. Leviticus 26:29 had warned of the same curse.

Historical Context

This happened multiple times in Israel's history: during the Aramean siege of Samaria (2 Kings 6:28-29), the Babylonian siege of Jerusalem (Lamentations 4:10), and the Roman siege (Josephus, Wars 6.3.4). These fulfillments demonstrate that God's word of judgment is as reliable as His word of promise.

Study Questions

1. How does the horror of this curse reveal the depth of human depravity apart from God's grace?
2. What does it mean that God's covenant curses are as certain as His covenant blessings?
3. How does the sacrifice of God's own Son reverse the curse that we deserved?
