

Deuteronomy 29:1

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

These are the words of the covenant, which the LORD commanded Moses to make with the children of Israel in the land of Moab, beside the covenant which he made with them in Horeb.

Analysis

These are the words of the covenant, which the LORD commanded Moses to make with the children of Israel in the land of Moab, beside the covenant which he made with them in Horeb. This verse introduces covenant renewal - a second covenant beside the covenant...in Horeb (Sinai). This is not replacement but reaffirmation and expansion of the original covenant for the generation entering Canaan.

The location in the land of Moab situates this renewal just before Jordan crossing. The first generation received the law at Sinai; the second generation receives renewed covenant at Moab. Each generation must personally commit, not merely inherit parents' relationship with God.

Moses serves as mediator - the LORD commanded Moses to make - demonstrating the prophetic role of communicating God's word and establishing covenant relationship between God and people. This foreshadows Christ's superior mediation of the New Covenant.

The distinction between Horeb covenant and Moab covenant teaches that while God's law is unchanging, His relationship with His people requires ongoing renewal and fresh commitment.

Historical Context

---

The Horeb (Sinai) covenant was given after the exodus, establishing Israel as theocratic nation. The Moab covenant renewed and expanded these terms forty years later as Israel prepared to enter Canaan.

Deuteronomy as whole functions as extended covenant renewal ceremony, with Moses preaching the law to the new generation.
