

Deuteronomy 3:14

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Jair the son of Manasseh took all the country of Argob unto the coasts of Geshuri and Maachathi; and called them after his own name, Bashan-havoth-jair, unto this day.

Analysis

The description 'all Bashan, being the kingdom of Og' going to 'half the tribe of Manasseh' shows substantial inheritance for this half-tribe. The alternative names for the region ('Argob... called... the land of giants') connect geography with history. The naming 'after his own name, Bashanhavothjair' preserves Jair's legacy, showing that faithful service leaves lasting impact. God allows His people to be remembered for their contributions to His kingdom.

Historical Context

Jair, son of Manasseh, captured villages in Bashan and named them after himself (Numbers 32:41). This naming convention was common in ancient Near East to commemorate conquest. The region remained known as Havoth-jair centuries later, showing how faithful acts create enduring legacy.
