

Deuteronomy 32:22

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

For a fire is kindled in mine anger, and shall burn unto the lowest hell, and shall consume the earth with her increase, and set on fire the foundations of the mountains.

Analysis

For a fire is kindled in mine anger—'ēsh qādēḥāh bē'appî (אֵשׁ קָדְחָהּ בְּאַפִּי). The verb qādaḥ means to kindle or ignite, depicting God's wrath as consuming fire, echoing Deuteronomy 4:24: 'the LORD thy God is a consuming fire, even a jealous God.' This is not petulant rage but judicial holy wrath against covenant violation.

Shall burn unto the lowest hell—she'ōl taḥtîth (שְׁאוֹל תַּחְתִּית), the deepest part of Sheol, the realm of the dead. The cosmic scope—consume the earth...set on fire the foundations of the mountains—depicts total judgment. Peter likely alludes to this in 2 Peter 3:10-12, describing eschatological fire dissolving creation's elements.

Historical Context

Moses describes God's wrath in cosmic terms that transcend any single historical judgment, pointing to ultimate eschatological judgment. While partially fulfilled in Israel's exiles (Assyrian, Babylonian), the language anticipates final judgment. Jesus's teaching on Gehenna (hell-fire, Matthew 5:22, 18:9) draws on this tradition of divine consuming wrath.

Study Questions

1. How does the reality of God's wrath as 'consuming fire' challenge modern attempts to eliminate divine judgment from theology?
2. Why must proper fear of God's holiness precede appreciation of His grace and mercy?
