

Deuteronomy 32:50

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

And die in the mount whither thou goest up, and be gathered unto thy people; as Aaron thy brother died in mount Hor, and was gathered unto his people:

Analysis

And die in the mount whither thou goest up, and be gathered unto thy people—the Hebrew phrase wē'āsaptā 'el-'ammēkā (אָסַפְתָּ אֶל־עַמְקָה), 'and be gathered to your people') is a euphemism for death used of Abraham (Genesis 25:8), Ishmael (Genesis 25:17), Isaac (Genesis 35:29), and Jacob (Genesis 49:29). It implies conscious afterlife and reunion with ancestors. As Aaron thy brother died in mount Hor, and was gathered unto his people (Numbers 20:22-29)—Moses will die as Aaron did, on a mountain, outside the Promised Land.

The parallel between Moses and Aaron is intentional—both sinned at Meribah (Numbers 20:10-12), both were denied entry to Canaan, both died on mountains within sight of the land. Yet 'gathered unto thy people' suggests death is not annihilation but transition. God Himself will bury Moses (Deuteronomy 34:6), an extraordinary honor. Despite judgment, Moses remains God's servant.

Historical Context

Aaron died on Mount Hor in 1407 BC at age 123 (Numbers 33:39). Moses died the following year at 120. Both deaths occurred just before Israel's entry into Canaan, symbolizing that the old generation under law could not enter the rest—only Joshua (whose name means 'Yahweh saves,' Greek Iesous/Jesus) could lead Israel in.
