

Deuteronomy 4:24

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

For the LORD thy God is a consuming fire, even a jealous God.

Analysis

For the LORD thy God is a consuming fire, even a jealous God.

Two divine attributes ground Moses' warning: God is esh okhelah (אֵשׁ אוֹכֵלָה, 'consuming fire') and El qanna (אֱלֹהֵי קַנָּא, 'a jealous God'). Fire in Scripture represents both God's holiness that purifies and His wrath that destroys what opposes Him. At Sinai, Israel witnessed this fire firsthand (Exodus 24:17); Hebrews 12:29 applies this same description to the God revealed in Christ.

Divine jealousy (qanna) is not petty envy but the righteous zeal of covenant love that will not share what belongs exclusively to Him. As a husband rightly refuses to share his wife's affections with another, God refuses divided loyalty. This jealousy flows from His worthiness—He alone deserves worship—and His love—He desires His people's undivided devotion for their good.

The connection between these attributes is crucial: because God is holy fire, idolatry invites destruction; because God is jealous, idolatry constitutes spiritual adultery. Both attributes serve as warnings, but they also reveal God's passionate commitment to His people. A God who did not care about our worship would be distant and indifferent. The jealous, consuming God is intimately concerned with our hearts' allegiances.

Historical Context

This characterization of God as 'consuming fire' recalls the theophany at Mount Horeb/Sinai where God descended in fire (Exodus 19:18, 24:17). Moses reminds Israel of God's jealous nature regarding worship, particularly relevant as they prepare to enter Canaan where Baal worship and other idolatries were pervasive among the indigenous peoples they would encounter.
