

Deuteronomy 5:25

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Now therefore why should we die? for this great fire will consume us: if we hear the voice of the LORD our God any more, then we shall die.

Analysis

The people's fear—'Now therefore why should we die? for this great fire will consume us'—reveals appropriate terror before holy God. The Hebrew 'akal' (consume/devour) acknowledges that God's holiness destroys sin. The warning 'if we hear the voice of the LORD our God any more, then we shall die' demonstrates human inability to endure prolonged divine presence. This validates the need for mediatorial priesthood and ultimately Christ's mediating work. Sinners require a go-between who can approach God safely and represent them. This Old Testament pattern prefigures the gospel's central truth: access to God requires a Mediator.

Historical Context

Israel's terror at Sinai (Exodus 20:18-21) led them to request Moses serve as mediator for all further divine communication. This established the pattern of prophetic mediation continuing throughout Old Testament history. The people's fear was justified—approaching God's holiness improperly resulted in death (Nadab and Abihu, Leviticus 10:1-2; Uzzah, 2 Samuel 6:6-7). Only the high priest could enter the Holy of Holies once yearly with blood sacrifice (Leviticus 16).

Study Questions

1. How does Israel's fear of God's consuming holiness validate the necessity of mediation for sinners to approach God?
2. In what ways does this passage prefigure Christ as the superior Mediator who enables believers to approach God's throne with confidence (Hebrews 4:16)?
