

Deuteronomy 7:22

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

And the LORD thy God will put out those nations before thee by little and little: thou mayest not consume them at once, lest the beasts of the field increase upon thee.

Analysis

God's gradual conquest strategy ('by little and little') serves wise purposes: preventing land desolation and wild beast proliferation. This shows divine wisdom in means as well as ends—God's purposes are accomplished at His pace, not ours. Immediate total conquest would have created ecological problems (abandoned farmland reverting to wilderness, dangerous animal populations). This teaches patience in God's timing and methods. God often works gradually in sanctification—progressive holiness, not instant perfection (Philippians 1:6). The phrase 'lest the beasts of the field increase' shows God's care for practical concerns, not just spiritual abstractions. Divine wisdom governs both salvation and the ordinary details of life.

Historical Context

Israel's actual conquest occurred in stages: initial campaigns under Joshua (7-8 years), followed by gradual consolidation over generations. Judges records ongoing conflicts with remaining Canaanite populations. Full territorial control wasn't achieved until David's reign, roughly 400 years after the initial conquest. This gradual process frustrated impatient Israelites but served God's wise purposes. Archaeological evidence shows some Canaanite cities were destroyed (Jericho, Hazor), others captured gradually, and some coexisted for extended periods before final Israelite control.
