

Deuteronomy 9:5

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Not for thy righteousness, or for the uprightness of thine heart, dost thou go to possess their land: but for the wickedness of these nations the LORD thy God doth drive them out from before thee, and that he may perform the word which the LORD sware unto thy fathers, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob.

Analysis

Moses continues: 'Not for thy righteousness, or for the uprightness of thine heart, dost thou go to possess their land.' The doubled negation—'not for thy righteousness... not for uprightness'—emphatically refutes any merit-based claim. Instead, two reasons are given: God's judgment on Canaanite wickedness and God's faithfulness to patriarchal promises. The phrase 'perform the word which the LORD sware unto thy fathers, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob' grounds the conquest in covenant faithfulness spanning centuries. God's character and promises, not Israel's worthiness, drive redemptive history.

Historical Context

God's covenant with Abraham (Genesis 12:1-3; 15:18-21; 17:1-8) promised land and descendants. God's oath to Isaac (Genesis 26:3-5) and Jacob (Genesis 28:13-15) renewed this promise. The Egyptian sojourn and exodus fulfilled part of the promise—deliverance and multiplication. The conquest would complete it—land possession. Throughout, Israel's unfaithfulness (golden calf, rebellion, murmuring) proved their unworthiness, yet God remained faithful. This pattern anticipates the New Covenant in Christ, secured entirely by God's faithfulness, not human merit.
