

Ecclesiastes 7:29

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Lo, this only have I found, that God hath made man upright;
but they have sought out many inventions.

Analysis

Lo, this only have I found (לֹא־בָּאָתִי רָאָה־זֶה מֵצָאתִי) — 'Only, see this I have found,' using levad (only/alone) to emphasize this is the single clear conclusion. That God hath made man upright (אֲשֶׁר עָשָׂה בָּאָתָּה אֱלֹהִים אֶת־הָאָדָם יָשָׁר) — 'that God made humanity upright/straight.' But they have sought out many inventions (וְהַמְּה בְּקִשׁוּ חִשְׁבּוֹנֹת רַבִּים) — 'but they have sought many schemes/devices.'

This verse provides the theological foundation for everything preceding: God created ha'adam (humanity—both male and female, Genesis 1:27) yashar (upright, straight, morally integrated). The problem isn't divine design but human rebellion —biqshu (they have sought) indicates active choice toward chishbonot rabbim (many schemes/inventions), using the same term cheshbon from verse 25. Humanity traded God's straight path for convoluted 'inventions.' This echoes Genesis 3—the Fall from original righteousness. Romans 5:12 explains: 'Sin came into the world through one man.' The rarity of finding righteous people (v. 28) stems not from creation but corruption. Yet redemption restores yashar: 'If anyone is in Christ, he is a new creation' (2 Corinthians 5:17).

Historical Context

This reflects Genesis 1-3 theology: humanity created in God's image (upright) but fallen through disobedience (seeking inventions). The Hebrew yashar appears throughout Scripture describing righteous living versus ish yashar be'einav ('everyone did what was right in his own eyes,' Judges 21:25).

Study Questions

1. How does understanding humanity's original righteousness and subsequent fall shape your view of human nature?
2. What 'inventions' or schemes do you observe in contemporary culture that represent departure from God's design?
3. How does the Gospel restore the 'uprightness' lost through human schemes and rebellion?
