

Exodus 12:46

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

In one house shall it be eaten; thou shalt not carry forth ought of the flesh abroad out of the house; neither shall ye break a bone thereof.

Analysis

The requirement that the lamb be eaten 'in one house' prevents dividing the feast among multiple locations, maintaining family unit cohesion. 'Neither shall thou carry forth ought of the flesh abroad' keeps the sacred meal contained. The prohibition 'nor break a bone' appears minor but gains profound significance in Christ's crucifixion (John 19:36)—His bones remained unbroken, fulfilling Passover typology perfectly.

Historical Context

Breaking bones was typical when consuming sacrifices to extract marrow. The prohibition for Passover lambs set them apart. Crucified victims normally had legs broken to hasten death (John 19:31-33), but not Christ.

Study Questions

1. How does the unbroken-bone requirement finding fulfillment in Christ's crucifixion demonstrate Scripture's prophetic unity?
2. What does keeping the meal 'in one house' teach about the importance of family/household worship?
