

Exodus 15:25

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

And he cried unto the LORD; and the LORD shewed him a tree, which when he had cast into the waters, the waters were made sweet: there he made for them a statute and an ordinance, and there he proved them,

Analysis

Moses' response to complaint: 'he cried unto the LORD.' Rather than defending himself or solving the problem independently, Moses intercedes. God's answer —'the LORD shewed him a tree'—provides solution through creation. Casting the tree 'into the waters, the waters were made sweet' accomplishes miracle through natural means. The tree's identity isn't specified because the focus is on God's provision, not the method. The subsequent 'there he made for them a statute and an ordinance, and there he proved them' indicates Marah becomes testing ground.

Historical Context

The sweetening tree's identity (possibly acacia or certain desert shrubs with water-purifying properties) is unknown. The focus is on God revealing the solution to Moses through prayer. The 'statute and ordinance' likely refer to testing obedience.
