

Exodus 16:10

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

And it came to pass, as Aaron spake unto the whole congregation of the children of Israel, that they looked toward the wilderness, and, behold, the glory of the LORD appeared in the cloud.

Analysis

As Aaron spake unto the whole congregation of the children of Israel, that they looked toward the wilderness, and, behold, the glory of the LORD appeared in the cloud—The glory (כְּבוֹד, kavod) appearing in the cloud manifests God's presence in response to Israel's unbelief. Looking 'toward the wilderness' (מִדְבָּר, midbar) rather than toward Egypt signifies the proper orientation: forward in faith, not backward in unbelief. The cloud, which had guided them, now becomes the vehicle for glory's manifestation. This theophany precedes provision, showing God's character before His gifts. Paul sees this cloud-covered glory as baptism (1 Cor 10:2), prefiguring union with Christ.

Historical Context

This visible manifestation of God's glory in the cloud reassured Israel of divine presence despite the barren wilderness. The glory validated Moses and Aaron's leadership.

Study Questions

1. Why does God reveal His glory before providing bread, rather than after?
2. How does looking 'toward the wilderness' in faith differ from looking back to Egypt in unbelief?
