

Exodus 2:4

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

And his sister stood afar off, to wit what would be done to him.

Analysis

And his sister stood afar off, to wit what would be done to him (וַתִּתַּצֵּב אָחוֹתוֹ מֵרָחוֹק, vattetatsav achoto merachok)—His sister (later identified as Miriam, 15:20) positions herself to observe and act. Stood (יָצָב, yatsav) suggests watchful readiness, not passive waiting. Afar off (מֵרָחוֹק, merachok) indicates strategic distance—close enough to intervene, far enough to appear inconspicuous. To wit (לְדַעַה, lede'ah, "to know") shows intentional intelligence-gathering. Miriam's courage and quick thinking (v. 7-8) will prove crucial to God's plan. This brief verse reveals character: the sister who guards Moses in infancy will lead worship after his greatest triumph (15:20-21).

Historical Context

Young girls were less threatening to Egyptian authorities and could move more freely than adults. Miriam's presence suggests family planning—someone must be ready to retrieve the ark or intervene if needed. Her later role as prophetess (15:20, Micah 6:4) begins with this childhood courage.

Study Questions

1. How does Miriam's watchful positioning teach about being ready to act when God provides opportunities?
2. In what situations has God called you to be present and observant, trusting He will show you when and how to intervene?
