

Exodus 2:5

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

And the daughter of Pharaoh came down to wash herself at the river; and her maidens walked along by the river's side; and when she saw the ark among the flags, she sent her maid to fetch it.

Analysis

And the daughter of Pharaoh came down to wash herself at the river; and her maidens walked along by the river's side; and when she saw the ark among the flags, she sent her maid to fetch it (וַתֵּצֶא בַת-פְּרַעָה לִרְחֵץ עַל-הַיָּם) vatred bat-Par'oh lirchots al-haye'or)—God's providence orchestrates perfect timing: Pharaoh's daughter discovers the ark. Rabbinic tradition names her Bithiah ("daughter of Yah"), suggesting later conversion. Came down (וַיַּעַד, yarad) to the river places her at the point of Moses' salvation. The irony is thick: Pharaoh weaponized the Nile for genocide (1:22); his daughter uses it for mercy. She sent her maid (וְאִמְתָּחָה, amatah, "her female servant") to fetch the ark—curiosity or compassion compels the action.

Historical Context

Egyptian royal women had significant autonomy and wealth. Bathing rituals included servants and perfumes. Archaeological evidence shows the eastern Delta (Goshen area) was accessible to royal family members who had estates there. Pharaoh's daughter's status meant she could defy her father's decree with relative impunity.
