

Exodus 20:17

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Thou shalt not covet thy neighbour's house, thou shalt not covet thy neighbour's wife, nor his manservant, nor his maidservant, nor his ox, nor his ass, nor any thing that is thy neighbour's.

Analysis

Thou shalt not covet thy neighbour's house, thou shalt not covet thy neighbour's wife, nor his manservant, nor his maidservant, nor his ox, nor his ass, nor any thing that is thy neighbour's.

The tenth command is internal—'lo tachmod' (לֹא תַחְמֹד, do not covet) addresses desire, not action. All previous commands concerned deeds; this penetrates the heart. 'Covet' means inordinate desire, greed that leads to grasping. The comprehensive list (house, wife, servants, animals, anything) covers all neighbor's possessions. Wife listed among property reflects ancient culture, but she's not 'thing'—she's covenant partner. Paul identifies coveting as idolatry (Colossians 3:5)—craving replaces God with stuff. Coveting sparked the first sin (Eve coveted forbidden fruit) and will mark the last days ('lovers of self, lovers of money,' 2 Timothy 3:2). Christ's contentment counters covetousness; gratitude defeats greed.

Historical Context

The tenth commandment uniquely addresses internal disposition rather than external action. This internalization reveals law's spiritual nature—God judges heart, not just hands. Paul says this command convicted him of sin (Romans 7:7).

Study Questions

1. Why does God command about desires (coveting) and not just actions—what does this teach about law's spiritual nature?
2. How does gratitude for God's provision combat covetousness for neighbor's possessions?
