

Exodus 20:3

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Thou shalt have no other gods before me.

Analysis

Thou shalt have no other gods before me.

The first word is singular 'Thou' (אַתָּה, lo yihyeh lekha)—God addresses each Israelite personally. 'No other gods' acknowledges rival claimants exist but denies their legitimacy. 'Before me' (עַל-פָּנַי, al-panai) literally 'before my face' or 'in my presence'—since God is omnipresent, this means 'anywhere, ever.' The command establishes monotheism as covenant foundation. It's not philosophical monotheism ('only one God exists') but covenantal monotheism ('YHWH alone is YOUR God'). The New Testament expands this: our God is money, comfort, approval, self—whatever commands ultimate allegiance. Jesus declares serving two masters impossible (Matthew 6:24). The first commandment is also greatest (Matthew 22:38).

Historical Context

In a polytheistic ancient Near East where every nation had patron deities, this radical monotheism set Israel apart. The command doesn't deny other gods' existence but their authority—YHWH alone deserves worship.
