

Exodus 20:6

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

And shewing mercy unto thousands of them that love me, and keep my commandments.

Analysis

And shewing mercy unto thousands of them that love me, and keep my commandments.

The contrast is staggering: judgment to third/fourth generation, but mercy 'unto thousands' (לְאַלְפִים, la'alafim)—thousands of generations or thousands of people, either way vastly exceeding judgment's scope. God's 'bent' is toward mercy, not wrath. 'Them that love me' (לְאוֹהָבַי, le'ohavai) and 'keep my commandments' (לְשִׁמְרַי, leshomrei mitzvotai) are parallel—love and obedience are inseparable. Jesus says 'if you love me, keep my commandments' (John 14:15). Obedience isn't legalism but love's expression. Love without obedience is sentimentalism; obedience without love is slavery. The 'thousands' of mercy swallow the four generations of judgment—grace triumphs over judgment (James 2:13).

Historical Context

The 'thousands' of mercy is literally 'to thousands'—in Hebrew often meaning unlimited/infinite. God's mercy extends exponentially beyond His wrath, revealing His essential nature as gracious.

Study Questions

1. How does the ratio of judgment (four generations) to mercy (thousands) reveal God's character?
2. What is the relationship between loving God and keeping His commandments —can they be separated?
