

Exodus 25:6

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Oil for the light, spices for anointing oil, and for sweet incense,

Analysis

More materials are specified—oil for light, spices for anointing and incense. The oil for the lampstand represents the Holy Spirit who provides continuous light (Zechariah 4:6). The anointing oil consecrates and sets apart for service, prefiguring Christ the 'Anointed One' (Messiah). The sweet incense represents acceptable prayers offered through Christ our High Priest (Revelation 8:3-4).

Historical Context

Olive oil was Israel's primary fuel for light, requiring continuous provision. The specific spices for anointing oil and incense would be detailed later (Exodus 30), each with sacred significance never to be replicated for common use.
