

Exodus 3:10

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Come now therefore, and I will send thee unto Pharaoh, that thou mayest bring forth my people the children of Israel out of Egypt.

Analysis

Come now therefore, and I will send thee unto Pharaoh, that thou mayest bring forth my people the children of Israel out of Egypt (וְעַתָּה לֵךְ וְאַשְׁלַחְךָ אֶל־) —God's commission: I will send thee (אֶשְׁלַחְךָ, eshlachakha). Come... and I will send—Moses must draw near before being sent. Unto Pharaoh—direct confrontation with world's greatest power. Bring forth my people (הוֹצֵא אֶת־עַמִּי)—bring forth (יָצָא, yatsa, "exodus/go out") gives the book its name. My people emphasizes covenant relationship. This is Moses' life-defining call—leading the greatest deliverance in OT history, typifying Christ's greater redemption (Luke 9:31, Jesus' "exodus" at Jerusalem). Moses will resist (vv. 11, 13; 4:1, 10, 13), but God's call stands firm.

Historical Context

Moses' commission comes after 80 years of preparation: 40 in Pharaoh's court learning Egyptian politics/culture, 40 in Midian's wilderness learning humility and survival. God's call is specific (unto Pharaoh), purposeful (bring forth), and personal (my people). This pattern of long preparation followed by specific commissioning appears throughout Scripture (Joseph, David, John the Baptist, Paul).

Study Questions

---

1. How does Moses' 80-year preparation encourage you during seasons of waiting before clear calling emerges?
2. What does God's direct commission ('I will send you') teach about the authority and responsibility of those called to difficult ministry?
