

Exodus 32:4

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

And he received them at their hand, and fashioned it with a graving tool, after he had made it a molten calf: and they said, These be thy gods, O Israel, which brought thee up out of the land of Egypt.

Analysis

Aaron's active role is clear: he 'received' (לָקַח, laqach), 'fashioned' (יָצַר, yatsar—the same word for God creating man in Gen 2:7), and 'made' (עָשָׂה, asah) the calf with a graving tool (חֶרֶט, cheret). His later excuse (v24) contradicts this detailed account. The proclamation אֵלֶּה אֱלֹהֶיךָ (eleh elohekha, these are your gods) echoes Israel's covenant language perversely, crediting the calf with the Exodus. The עֵגֶל מִסֵּכָה (egel masekah, molten calf) likely represented Apis, the Egyptian bull-god, or Canaanite Baal.

Historical Context

Bull imagery was common in ancient Near Eastern religion, representing fertility and strength. Jeroboam later established similar calves at Dan and Bethel (1 Kings 12:28-29), using nearly identical words.
