

Exodus 39:26

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

A bell and a pomegranate, a bell and a pomegranate, round about the hem of the robe to minister in; as the LORD commanded Moses.

Analysis

The alternating pattern—'a bell and a pomegranate, a bell and a pomegranate'—creates rhythmic repetition emphasizing completeness. The phrase 'to minister in' (לְשָׁרֵת, lesharet) indicates these adornments served functional, not merely decorative, purposes. Ministry to God requires both audible witness (bells) and visible fruit (pomegranates). The tenth 'as the LORD commanded Moses' in chapter 39 underscores exact obedience. Christ's perfect priesthood combines sound doctrine (bells) and sanctified living (fruit), witness and works, proclamation and proof.

Historical Context

The hem's complete circling with alternating bells and pomegranates ensured the audible witness continued regardless of the high priest's position or movement. The careful alternation demonstrates attention to pattern, not random placement—everything in worship follows divine order.

Study Questions

1. How should ministers today balance audible witness (proclamation) and visible fruit (godly living)?
2. What does the alternating pattern teach about rhythm and order in sustained spiritual ministry?
