

Exodus 40:10

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

And thou shalt anoint the altar of the burnt offering, and all his vessels, and sanctify the altar: and it shall be an altar most holy.

Analysis

Anointing the bronze altar and vessels 'sanctifies' (קדש, veidashta) them, making them 'most holy' (קדש קדשים, qodesh qodashim, holy of holies). The bronze altar, though located in the outer courtyard, receives the highest consecration because it bore atoning sacrifice. This teaches that sacrifice's place is supremely holy—Christ's cross, though outside Jerusalem (Hebrews 13:12), is salvation's most sacred site. Whatever touches the altar becomes holy (Exodus 29:37), prefiguring Christ sanctifying those who approach through Him (Hebrews 10:10, 14).

Historical Context

The bronze altar's 'most holy' status meant that anything touching it was consecrated to God and couldn't be used for common purposes. This principle protected the altar's sanctity and taught Israel that approaching God through sacrifice was their holiest privilege.

Study Questions

1. What does the bronze altar's supreme holiness despite its 'outer' location teach about sacrifice's centrality?
2. How does Christ sanctifying those who touch Him by faith illustrate the altar's consecrating power?
