

Ezekiel 16:28

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Thou hast played the whore also with the Assyrians, because thou wast unsatiable; yea, thou hast played the harlot with them, and yet couldst not be satisfied.

Analysis

---

Thou hast played the whore also with the Assyrians, because thou wast unsatiable—The Hebrew lo sav'at (לֹא שָׂבַעְתָּ, not satisfied) exposes the insatiable nature of idolatry. After Egyptian alliances failed, Jerusalem pursued Assyrian treaties (2 Kings 16:7-9). Yet couldst not be satisfied repeats the indictment, emphasizing that false gods never fulfill—they only multiply cravings.

This reveals idolatry's core deception: created things promise satisfaction but deliver addiction. Augustine's confession applies: 'Thou hast made us for Thyself, and our hearts are restless until they rest in Thee.' Jerusalem's serial political adultery mirrors modern therapeutic culture—when one ideology, relationship, or substance fails to satisfy, the idolater moves to the next. Only Christ satisfies: 'Whosoever drinketh of the water that I shall give him shall never thirst' (John 4:14).

Historical Context

Ahaz submitted to Assyria as a vassal (2 Kings 16:7-18), even altering the temple to match Assyrian patterns. Later kings oscillated between pro-Assyrian and pro-Egyptian policies, demonstrating the political instability that mirrored spiritual adultery. By Ezekiel's time, these alliances had proven catastrophic—Assyria destroyed the Northern Kingdom, and Babylon would destroy Judah.

Study Questions

1. What patterns of serial idolatry (pursuing satisfaction from created things) characterize your life—relationships, achievements, possessions?
2. How has your pursuit of satisfaction from things other than God left you more empty and craving rather than fulfilled?
