

Ezekiel 23:26

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

They shall also strip thee out of thy clothes, and take away thy fair jewels.

Analysis

They shall also strip thee out of thy clothes, and take away thy fair jewels pictures total plunder. Nakedness represents complete humiliation and loss of dignity. Fair jewels symbolize wealth, status, and glory—all stripped away. This fulfills covenant curses of Deuteronomy 28:29-35. God warned Moses that disobedience would result in exactly this degradation. Prophetic fulfillment demonstrates covenant fidelity—God keeps promises, both blessing and curse. Jerusalem's shame confirms God's truthfulness. We prefer emphasizing God's mercy, but His justice is equally certain. Every warning will be fulfilled; every threat executed. This should terrify us into obedience and drive us to gratitude that Christ bore our curse (Galatians 3:13), becoming naked and humiliated for us.

Historical Context

Babylonian conquest included systematic plundering. The temple's gold and sacred vessels were carried to Babylon (2 Kings 25:13-17). The wealth of Jerusalem's nobility was seized. Survivors were left destitute, fulfilling Deuteronomy's covenant curses with precision across eight centuries from Moses to Ezekiel.
