

Ezekiel 23:27

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Thus will I make thy lewdness to cease from thee, and thy whoredom brought from the land of Egypt: so that thou shalt not lift up thine eyes unto them, nor remember Egypt any more.

Analysis

Thus will I make thy lewdness to cease from thee declares judgment's purpose: eradication of sin. And thy whoredom brought from the land of Egypt emphasizes ancient roots being destroyed. Judgment isn't merely punitive but remedial—it purges. So that thou shalt not lift up thine eyes unto them, nor remember Egypt any more indicates forced separation from idols. When all false hopes are destroyed, only God remains. This is severe mercy. Sometimes God must strip away every competing affection to win exclusive devotion. He burns chaff to purify gold. Exile would accomplish what prosperity couldn't: exclusive worship of Yahweh. After exile, Jews never returned to idolatry. Judgment succeeded where blessing failed.

Historical Context

Post-exilic Judaism became fiercely monotheistic. Second Temple Judaism's resistance to idolatry—even unto death under Antiochus Epiphanes (167-164 BC) and Roman persecution—demonstrates exile successfully purged idolatrous tendencies. The Maccabean martyrs and later Jewish resistance to emperor worship prove judgment achieved its purpose of producing exclusive Yahweh worship.
