

Ezekiel 24:1

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Again in the ninth year, in the tenth month, in the tenth day of the month, the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

Analysis

In the ninth year, in the tenth month, in the tenth day of the month— January 15, 588 BC (per modern calculations), the exact day Nebuchadnezzar's army laid siege to Jerusalem (2 Kings 25:1). The precision is prophetically significant: Ezekiel, 700 miles away in Babylon, receives the word of the LORD (דְּבָרֵי יְהָוָה, debar-YHWH) announcing Jerusalem's doom the very day it begins.

This divine synchronicity authenticated Ezekiel's ministry to skeptical exiles who doubted Jerusalem would fall. The triple dating formula (shanah/year, chodesh/month, yom/day) marks prophetic urgency—this is the moment God's patience ends, when warning yields to judgment. Ezekiel 24:2 commands: 'Write thee the name of the day, even of this same day.'

Historical Context

Ezekiel dated oracles from King Jehoiachin's exile (597 BC), treating him as legitimate king though Zedekiah ruled in Jerusalem. The 'ninth year' means 588 BC, when Zedekiah rebelled against Babylon despite Jeremiah's warnings. The synchronized revelation proved supernatural knowledge—no courier could travel Babylon to Jerusalem in one day—vindicating Ezekiel's prophetic authority.
