

Ezekiel 25:2

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Son of man, set thy face against the Ammonites, and prophesy against them;

Analysis

Ammon, descended from Lot's incestuous union (Genesis 19:38), maintained hostile relations with Israel throughout history. 'Set thy face against' signifies declarative judgment. Prophets didn't merely predict the future—their words participated in divine judgment's execution. The spoken word of God accomplishes His purposes (Isaiah 55:11).

Historical Context

The Ammonites occupied territory east of the Jordan River, in modern-day Jordan near present-day Amman (named after ancient Ammon). They frequently raided Israel and rejoiced at Judah's fall.
