

Ezekiel 26:11

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

With the hoofs of his horses shall he tread down all thy streets: he shall slay thy people by the sword, and thy strong garrisons shall go down to the ground.

Analysis

With the hoofs of his horses shall he tread down all thy streets continues the vivid imagery. Horses trampling streets represents total conquest and occupation. He shall slay thy people by the sword predicts loss of life. And thy strong garrisons shall go down to the ground means fortifications will be demolished. The phrase strong garrisons ironically contrasts military strength with ultimate vulnerability—what seemed impregnable falls. Human strength cannot stand against divine decree. Our strongest defenses become rubble when God decrees it. Pride in military might is misplaced confidence.

Historical Context

Tyre's fortifications were legendary, yet they fell to Babylonian assault. Later, Alexander's forces also overcame them. No walls, no matter how strong, can stand when God determines their fall. History demonstrates repeatedly that human defenses, however sophisticated, cannot resist divine purposes. Tyre learned what every empire eventually learns: God humbles the proud.
