

Ezekiel 26:8

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

He shall slay with the sword thy daughters in the field: and he shall make a fort against thee, and cast a mount against thee, and lift up the buckler against thee.

Analysis

He shall slay with the sword thy daughters in the field predicts the mainland settlements' destruction. And he shall make a fort against thee describes siege works. And cast a mount against thee refers to earthen siege ramps. And lift up the buckler against thee means raising siege shields. The technical military details show God's intimate knowledge of warfare and His use of standard military practices to accomplish His purposes. Judgment employs ordinary means directed by extraordinary providence. God doesn't usually work miraculously when natural means suffice—He sovereignly orchestrates natural processes.

Historical Context

Ancient siege warfare followed standard practices: isolating the city, building siege works (forts, ramps), deploying siege engines, and systematic assault. Nebuchadnezzar employed all these against Tyre. Archaeological evidence from other sites shows Babylonian siege methodology matching Ezekiel's description, confirming both historical accuracy and prophetic precision.
