

Ezekiel 34:2

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Son of man, prophesy against the shepherds of Israel, prophesy, and say unto them, Thus saith the Lord GOD unto the shepherds; Woe be to the shepherds of Israel that do feed themselves! should not the shepherds feed the flocks?

Analysis

---

"Woe be to the shepherds of Israel that do feed themselves! should not the shepherds feed the flocks?" This indictment targets corrupt leaders who exploit rather than serve God's people. The shepherd metaphor appears throughout Scripture—leaders as shepherds, people as sheep. True shepherds feed, protect, and guide the flock; false shepherds exploit sheep for personal gain. This passage anticipates Jesus as the Good Shepherd who lays down His life for the sheep (John 10:11). Reformed polity emphasizes plurality of elders and accountability to prevent shepherds becoming hirelings who flee danger or exploiters who fleece the flock.

Historical Context

Ezekiel prophesied against Judah's corrupt leadership (586 BC)—kings, priests, nobles who enriched themselves while neglecting people's spiritual welfare. These shepherds led Israel into idolatry, political alliances with Egypt, and social oppression. Archaeological evidence reveals extreme wealth disparity in pre-exilic Judah—luxury for elites, poverty for masses. The shepherds' failure culminated in exile and Davidic monarchy's collapse. This pattern repeats when church leaders pursue power, wealth, or prestige rather than faithful ministry. The passage warns that God holds shepherds accountable for flock's spiritual condition.

Study Questions

1. How does this indictment challenge leaders who use ministry for personal advancement rather than serving God's people?
2. What characteristics distinguish genuine shepherds from hirelings or exploiters?
